Broadcast Village

Temporary Office Space

Triumph Modular provided a Broadcast Village to house the media and broadcasting equipment for the U.S. Open to be installed and removed annually. Each year we install more than 16,000 square feet of modular space at each event. The Broadcast Village features more than two dozen high-quality mobile offices and a 1,500-square-foot outdoor dining patio with aluminum railings. The patio surface is made of Trex® composite products for durability and ease of maintenance. Aluminum decking, walkways, railings, and staircases run along the front length of the fully assembled modular building.

The interior of the modular units was uniquely built to accommodate the cooling environment requirements for the broadcasting equipment. The building specifications required two HVAC units per module; standard specifications require one HVAC unit per module.

After the event, Triumph Modular disassembles and stores the buildings for use at next year's U.S. Open.
